Session 1: Building Bridges - A Shared Vision – March 4, 2009

Group discussion:

What was it about this course and Cantor Wehle that led you to sign up? What did Cantor Wehle mean by "Building Bridges"? Do you know local people or groups that are trying to building bridges like this?

What types of groups contain people different from you? Do you know anyone who has strong opinions about other religions, ethnic groups, or other people who are "different"?

What is a bridge? Why do we build bridges? Where do we build bridges? How do we know if the bridge is working the way it should? When is it time to expand or tear down an old bridge and build a new one?

How can we make these classes "doings" instead of just "meetings"? How can we continue the shared vision of Cantor Susan Wehle and Mrs. Aasiya Hassan? How can we set an example for others trying to "build bridges"?

Session 2: Building Bridges - Deciding What Bridge to Build 3/11/09

Review of Session 1:

Definitions/Etymologies

Judaism

from http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Etymology_of_the_word_Jew

The Jewish ethnonym in Hebrew is יהודים Yehudim (plural of יהודי Yehudi) which is the origin of the English word Jew. The Hebrew name is derived from the region name Judah (Yehudah יהודה). Originally the name referred to the territory allotted to the tribe descended from Judah the fourth son of the patriarch Jacob (Numbers). Judah was one of the twelve sons of Jacob and one of the Twelve tribes of Israel (Genesis). The Genesis 29:35 [1] relates that Judah's mother — the matriarch Leah — named him Yehudah (i.e. "Judah") because she wanted to "praise God" for giving birth to so many sons: "She said, 'This time let me praise (odeh אודה) God (יהודה),' and named the child Judah (Yehudah יהודה)." Thus combining "praise" and "God" into one new name. Thereafter Judah vouchsafes the Jewish monarchy, and the Israelite kings David and Solomon derive their lineage from Judah. After the splitting of the united Kingdom of Israel, the name was used for the southern kingdom of Judah, containing not only the land of the tribe of Judah but also that of Benjamin and Simeon. With the destruction of the northern kingdom of Israel, the kingdom of Judah became the sole Jewish state and the term y'hudi (יהודי) was applied to all Israelites. When the word makes its first appearance in writing (in the book of Esther) its meaning has already expanded to include converts to the Jewish religion as well as descendants of Israelites.

In Hebrew, the name "Judah" (יהודה) contains the four letters of the Tetragrammaton — the special, holy, and ineffable name of the Jewish God. The very holiness of the name of Judah attests to its importance as an alternate name for "Israelites" that it ultimately replaces.

Israel

from <http://www.etymonline.com/index.php?term=Israel>

O.E., "the Jewish people," from L. Israel, from Gk., from Heb. yisra'el "he that striveth with God" (Gen. xxxii.28), symbolic proper name conferred on Jacob and extended to his descendants, from sara "he fought, contended" + El "God." As an independent Jewish state in the country formerly called Palestine, it is attested from 1948. Citizens of it are called Israelis; the ancient people are Israelites (1382).

Torah

from <http://jewsandjoes.com/etymology-of-torah.html>

What is the "true sense" or "true meaning" of the word "Torah"? From the Hebrew Scriptures, we know that the Torah is "Light", "Light that shows the Way of/to Life".

Proverb 6:23 "For the commandment is a lamp and the teaching [Hebrew: Torah] is light [Hebrew: Ore]; And reproofs for discipline are the way of life"

If you were reading the above passage in Hebrew, you would immediately hear the word relationship between "Ore" and "Torah". See also: Psalms 119:105-115; Isaiah 8:20. Hebrew words are formed or derived from two and three letter root words. Looking at root words and closely related words with the same root as "Torah", you'll begin to see the "root meaning" of the word Torah. The word depicts much more than what is generally perceived as just "Law" in the English language.

Ore - "light" (Hebrew: אור - Strongs#:H216)

Yarah - "to shoot, to point, to teach" (Hebrew: ירה - Strongs#:H3384)

Moreh - "archer, teacher" (Hebrew: מורה - Strongs#:H4175)

Torah - "instruction, teaching, law" (Hebrew: תורה - Strongs#:H8451)

Ultimately, the Torah can be defined as this: "the Light (ore) which the Teacher (Moreh) casts in a direction (yarah) for us to walk in". When regarding the Torah given to Moses, יהוה is Teacher and Giver of the Light, the Torah. He is the One who loves us so much that He wants us to walk in the pathway of Light and safety, not in ignorance and darkness.

Islam

from http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Islam#Etymology_and_meaning

The word Islam is a verbal noun originating from the triliteral root s-l-m, and is derived from the Arabic verb Aslama, which means "to accept, surrender or submit." Thus, Islam means acceptance of and submission to God, and believers must demonstrate this by worshipping him, following his commands, and avoiding polytheism. The word is given a number of meanings in the Qur'an. In some verses (ayat), the quality of Islam as an internal conviction is stressed: "Whomsoever God desires to guide, He expands his breast to Islam." [12] Other verses connect islām and dīn (usually translated as "religion"): "Today, I have perfected your religion (dīn) for you; I have completed My blessing upon you; I have approved Islam for your religion." [13] Still others describe Islam as an action of returning to God — more than just a verbal affirmation of faith. [14] Another technical meaning in Islamic thought is as one part of a triad of islam, imān (faith), and ihsān (excellence); where it represents acts of worship (`ibādah) and Islamic law (sharia). [15]

Jihad

from <http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Islam#Jihad>

Jihad means "to strive or struggle" (in the way of God) and is considered the "Sixth Pillar of Islam" by a minority of Sunni Muslim authorities. [58] Jihad, in its broadest sense, is classically defined as "exerting one's utmost power, efforts, endeavors, or ability in contending with an object of disapprobation." Depending on the object being a visible enemy, the devil, and aspects of one's own self, different categories of Jihad are defined. [59] Jihad when used without any qualifier is understood in its military aspect. [60][61] Jihad also refers to one's striving to attain religious and moral perfection. [62] Some Muslim authorities, especially among the Shi'a and Sufis, distinguish between the "greater jihad", which pertains to spiritual self-perfection, and the "lesser jihad", defined as warfare. [63]

from http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Qu'ran#Etymology_and_meaning

The original usage of the word qur`ān is in the Qur'an itself, where it occurs about 70 times assuming various meanings. It is a verbal noun (maṣ dar) of the Arabic verb qara`a (Arabic: قرأ), meaning "he read" or "he recited", and represents the Syriac equivalent qeryānā which refers to "scripture reading" or "lesson". While most Western scholars consider the word to be derived from the Syriac, the majority of Muslim authorities hold the origin of the word is qara`a itself. [24] In any case, it had become an Arabic term by Muhammad's lifetime. [2] Among the earliest meanings of the word Qur'an is the "act of reciting", for example in a Qur'anic passage: "Ours is it to put it together and [Ours is] its qur`ān". [25] In other verses it refers to "an individual passage recited [by Muhammad]". In the large majority of contexts, usually with a definite article (al-), the word is referred to as the "revelation" (wahy), that which has been "sent down" (tanzil) at intervals. [26][27] Its liturgical context is seen in a number of passages, for example: "So when al-qur`ān is recited, listen to it and keep silent". [28] The word may also assume the meaning of a codified scripture when mentioned with other scriptures such as the Torah and Gospel. [29]

Christianity

from <http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Christianity>

(from the word Χριστός "Christ") is a monotheistic religion [1] centered on the life and teachings of Jesus as presented in the New Testament. [2]

New Testament

from http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/New_Testament#Etymology

The New Testament (Greek: Καινή Διαθήκη, Kainē Diathēkē) is the name given to the second major division of the Christian Bible, the first such division being the much longer Old Testament. The New Testament is sometimes called the Greek New Testament or Greek Scriptures, or the New Covenant.

BUILDING RELATIONSHIPS BETWEEN INTERRELIGIOUS ORGANIZATIONS - An Opportunity for Dialogue and Networking

Sunday, March 15, 2009 - 2:00–8:30 p.m. - Islamic Society of Boston Cultural Center - 100 Malcolm X Blvd. - Roxbury Crossing
Suggested donation: $20 - Includes supper and materials

The greater Boston community can take pride in the work of numerous groups, both official and unofficial, that have been outspoken in their commitment to the furtherance of interreligious understanding between the three Abrahamic faiths of Judaism, Christianity and Islam. Whenever voices of bigotry have been raised or acts of violence and inflammatory characterizations directed at one faith or another, they have been met with determined responses.

Yet there have been few opportunities for the leadership of these groups, many unknown to one another, to come together to share ideas and hopes, as well as express fears and concerns and explore the potential for future networking and cooperation. To bridge that gap, the ICPL has arranged a gathering for an exchange of views on the perils and promises of interreligious dialogue and what participating groups should anticipate as they go forward. Invitations to participate have been extended to leaders of interreligious organizations throughout the Boston area. Those attending have been asked to bring with them examples of projects appropriate for inclusion in a program fair from which everyone can benefit.

In planning this event, it was felt that there would be no clearer illustration of the commitment to the ideal of interreligious understanding than to convene at the Islamic Society Cultural Center in Roxbury, which has graciously agreed to host the event.

Points to Ponder/Group Discussion

What if someone said to you: “You’re Jewish? Really? No, you can’t be Jewish” or “You’re Muslim? Really? No, you can’t be Muslim”?

“What do human beings contribute to the world? How does Judaism and Islam regard “repairing the world”?

Interfaith Seder
4/2/09

Participant: The struggle for freedom, for the elusive rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of justice, is a constant one. In every age, some new freedom is won and established, but there are still some enslavements requiring liberation. The victory over the first Pharaoh foreshadows of all the emancipations that were to follow, and which will yet follow in the days to come. Mitzrayim means the narrow place – the place that squeezes the life out of a human soul and body. We are all still enslaved in Mitzrayim, because we are still struggling to be free. We are duty bound to retell and expand upon the story of our Exodus from Mitzrayim to remind us to work for the time when all the Pharaohs of the world will be vanquished, when right will conquer might, when God alone will rule, and all people will enjoy peace and freedom.

Homework: Let me know if you can go to the Interfaith Seder by TOMORROW (email me at drstall@stallgeriatrics.com). Continue building your “bridge”.

From the video's official press release:

"...it is not just an Israeli story – it is a story about trying to find peace by combating extremism at home – perhaps the only strategy that will ever break endless waves of attack and reprisal. Conflicts between a moderate, tolerant majority and a vocal, fundamentalist minority are seen throughout the world – rarely are such conflicts resolved peacefully. Israel is only one of many places where the first battle for peace must be fought at home..."
